Of course, the war debts are dead. The powers will fiddle, will reduce, will protest, but there is no choice. Europe must be free of war debts, must disarm, or revolution and war will end capitalism. Hoover knows it, fears American legislation, public opinion, will not support such a measure. Hearst is the fiercest foe. Nevertheless, no large sums will ever be paid to the debtors. Uncle Sam will hold the empty bag, as a souvenir of his stupidity in going to war.

The skulduggery of the Southern Pacific ferry companies from Sausalito to San Francisco, in preventing the beginning of the Golden Gate bridge, is to earn four thousand dollars a day profit for every day of delay. No wonder common folks lose patience with public utilities that hinder progress for pelf. They might look across to Russia.

I was wrong. Ghandi's goat is not in London. He refuses the service of the British milch-animal, and will bring to the London Round-table, two nannies from India. He has no baggage, as he wears only a drape. Without hair or teeth, he needs no toilet dinguses. He is one of the greatest men in the world, but makes Wrigleys, tailors, Walk-overs, bootleggers, Ipanas, restaurants, weep. I see the makings of a folk-song in:

Ghandi is no dandy;
He never touches candy;
Nor a single drop of brandy;
But he's always living grandy,
If a nannygoat is handy.

Refrain:

"Ma-a! Ma-a! Ma-a! Swaraj!"

It could be set to an old Hindu air, and crooned over the radio by Oh-What-a-Ham Rudee. A new Ma-a--habbharatta.

Gilda Gray, great actress, dancer and beauty, says in a page interview:

"I have curves. I know girls who starve themselves nearly to death to wear off their curves and gain sharp elbows, ribs that stick out and shoulder blades sharp enough to cut.

"But I have curves—and plenty of

Ordinance Protested

Carmel's recently enacted ordinance designed to restrict house-to-house distribution of advertising matter is the subject of comment by W. R. Holman, head of the Peninsula's largest department store. A test action on the ordinance has been filed at Salinas by Guy Curtis, publisher of a shopping publication, and a date for hearing is to be set within a few days.

Mr. Holman's statement, here published for information only, reads in part:

"In reference to the new Carmel ordinance prohibiting the distribution of circulars and shopping news, we are of the opinion that this ordinance is unconstitutional, as it is discriminatory as far as its rulings are concerned.

"To allow one class of advertiser or advertising medium to distribute and to bar the other class is unfair and unjust and is using the city government for the purpose of putting out of buisness and encouraging the other class.

"The class of advertising that is protected, if any can be called a menace, is just as much a menace to their city as the other.

"During the past fourteen years we have distributed our advertising material to the homes of Carmel people as well as other portions of the Monterey Peninsula.

"Our advertising material has never been thrown in yards, scattered on streets, or allowed to blow into the yards or on the streets. . .

"During the past fourteen years our records show that not over five families in Carmel have requested us not to leave circulars at their homes. These were immediately eliminated from our distribution list. . .

"That is the constant slogan of the newspapers . . . 'to keep informed—read the daily advertisements,' and yet certain newspapers wish to discriminate as though to say, 'read the advertisements in our columns, but cast all others aside.' "

Clean-up Campaign

Orders have been issued for more rigid enforcement of the ordinance pertaining to the dumping of rubbish, and notices now being printed will be served on property owners and others concerned within a few days.

Complaints have been received by Fire Chief Robert G. Leidig and Chief of Police Gus Englund, concerning the vacant lots on Santa Fe between First and Second. The young pine and underbrush there constitute a serious fire hazard, and the ground has been used for dumping rubbish by Carmel residents for many years. Action in the matter is pending.

FULL HOUSE

Postmaster W. L. Overstreet reported yesterday that for the first time in the history of the local office every letter-box is in use. The total installation is thirteen hundred and fifty. Forward reservations for boxes which cannot be handled at present number about fifty.

Enlargement of the post office quarters, definitely to be undertaken by T. W. Morgan, owner of the premises, now awaits departmental approval of the architect's plans which have been in Washington for several weeks.

MISCREANTS

Sabotage appeared in Carmel Sunday night when tires on four cars parked on Casanova street were punctured, apparently with an ice pick and a hatchet. Edward Kuster is the owner of one of the cars damaged.

ESPINEL AT DEL MONTE

Reservations are being made for the recital of Luisa Espinel, under Denny-Watrous management, in the Copper Cup Room of the Hotel Del Monte, on Wednesday evening, August twenty-sixth, at nine o'clock. Admission at the door will be one dollar, or reservation may be made through the Gallery.

them! I don't try to get rid of them. I'm proud of them. Curves are feminine, and it is only the truly feminine woman who can be beautiful.

"Fat is different. To be lovely a woman needs so much covering to her bones; but when too much covering comes she must, of course, get it off.

"But no diet. At least not for me. I shake it off. Dance with your feet and yor legs and shoulders—bring the whole body into the dance. Excess flesh won't stay with you if you dance that way.

"And dancing—unless combined with idiotic under-eating—won't reduce a girl to elbows and bones. She'll keep enough flesh on her to provide attractive curves. And say what you like," Gilda Gray smiled, "it isn't the skinny-marink who brings the gleam of interest into a man's eyes; she has no chance at all—except when the girl with curves isn't around!"

"But," I argued, "I've seen a lot of men with thin girls—"

Gilda shook her head. "That doesn't mean a thing—just lack of competition. For ten years now it's been practically the work of a lifetime for a man to find a girl with a decent supply of curves. They've been pretty scarce; and, of course, even a skinny girl with elbows is better than none at all."

Gilda's curves raised her from a Polish kitchen wench to fame, lovers, and millions. She is the highest-paid entertainer in the world. In her own story, she says: "Fifteen years of torso-tossing from midnight to dawn . . . Nights of thigh-grinding . . . Nights of body-twisting. . . Glorious nights. . . Successful nights. . . There was the night I met Frederick O'Brien. . . The night I did my South Seas dance. . . Tumultous night. . . Wild night. . " The wildness was all on her part, of course, and of the folks in the Rendezvous, then the most fashionable night club in New York. I, merely, showed her a white South Seas islander's idea of an upaupa hura. Nothing more. I should have patented it, for she danced it twice a night for years, and emerged from the simple shimmy to stardom, the fillums and divorce. She is right about Curves.

PUPPETS

Several puppet plays will be given in the Studio Theatre of the Golden Bough Saturday matinee and evening, and Sunday matinee by the McCarthy Wynnyk Puppeteers of New York. These puppets are recognized as the "creative expression of true artist, combining technical sophistication in carving, costuming, electrical effects and acting with pure fancy and make-believe."

Beryl Wynnyk, the founder, has won the co-operation and endorsement of the American Association of University Women, various Parent-Teachers Associations, and other educational organizations.

OPERALOGUE

A most successful musical afternoon was afforded Saturday when Gaetano Merola, general conductor of the San Francisco Opera, presented an operalogue of "Marouf," by M. Rabaud, present director of the Conservatory of Paris. This delightful opera will be presented for the first time on the Pacific Coast in San Francisco on Thursday, September tenth.

The story is from the Arabian Nights, and the music is full of Oriental atmosphere and color. The hero, Marouf, a cobbler of Cairo, is a philosophical adventurer of amusing temperament. His journeys and experiences after he resolves to leave his shrewish wife, form the theme of the opera.
